DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which the subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gago (4,958,111).

Regarding claims 1 and 26, Gago teaches a base (2a); an isolation support for supporting the mechanical drive system whereby the mechanical drive system is translatable rotatably with respect to the base (fig. 1); a rotatory driver (2) coupled resiliently to the base and to the rotatory input of the rotatory mechanical system (fig. 1) for-applying-a-torque to the rotatory mechanical system and-thereby urging the rotatory mechanical system into substantially isolated rotation; and an accelerometer (col. 9, lines 45-48) coupled to the rotatory mechanical system for producing an accelerometer signal responsive to variation in the rate of angular displacement. Gago fails to teach that the arrangement is for a vehicle while it is subjected to a testing process. Although Gago teaches the tension and web guiding system, a rotatory drive system is taught. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made to have used the system of Gago in a system for a vehicle for the purpose of testing the rotation of the vehicle's system.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 2-25 and 27-50 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
